

Shot at $64,000 Declined By Bill and Jim Egan

"Popular Music Not For Us," Says Jim

Trinity's two most controversial alumni declined to try for T.V.'s $64,000 Question last night. Bill and Jim Egan ('33 and '37) concluded five weeks of appearances in New York on the "$64,000 Question" by collecting $32,000 under the premise of being "perfectly satisfied with their present situation." They declined to answer questions on the subject of "popular music," even though they had the right to bring any authority on the subject to the microphone with them for help.

The Egan brothers, appropriately dubbed Tweedle-Dee and Tweedle-Dum for their 6' 4" heights and combined weight of more than a quarter ton, had risen to national fame in the past five weeks. In the Hartford area, and especially at the Heublein Hotel and the College campus, T.V. sets were as eagerly attended as if floor space were being sold.

More fantastic than their size was their choice of subjects. They were the first two-man team to play the game, and also the first to challenge any subject on the board. After steam-rolling over topics such as boxing, jazz and English literature, the brothers decided that the final category, popular music, "was not for us."

When asked what he was going to do with his share of the money, Jim Egan exclaimed that he was certainly going to sleep well since he now has it, and then begin to pay his bills.

Tripod Interview Discourages Rumor

The Tripod was recently informed that a large number of books have been stolen from the library, and that many students were signing false names to the cards in order to keep reserved books out while they are overdue. The Tripod looked into this matter, and in an interview with Librarian Donald Engley, it was disclosed that the matter was not nearly as serious as we were led to believe.

Few Books Actually Stolen

"Books are lost most frequently by being mislaid, incorrectly shelved, lost in transit or inadvertently taken from the building by a student who fails to sign the book out," Dr. Engley disclosed. He went on to assure us that "in very few cases are books actually stolen. Usually missing books find their way back to the library or are found in the dormitories at the end of a semester. Librarian Engley stressed the fact that there is no appreciable book loss of a permanent nature."

Students on Honor

The library was designed for control purposes, he stated. The desk is located near the only exit to remind students that books must be signed out. "In return for almost 100% access to the shelves, the library expects students to be honorable about having books checked out. A guard at the door is the last thing we would resort to," Dr. Engley concluded.

Tripod Elections

Editor-in-Chief of the Tripod, Paul P. Terry announced today that staff elections will be held promptly at 7:30 Monday evening in the Tripod office. He pointed out that all members whose names are listed in the masthead are eligible and obligated to vote.

IFC-ROTC Ball Change Asked By Kim Shaw

By TIM RALSTON

A proposal that the I.F.C. Ball replace the R.O.T.C. weekend was brought before the Senate last Monday night by I.F.C. President Kim Shaw.

The main problem involved in the change is that the I.F.C. would then have a full three-day weekend while the R.O.T.C. would have only a two-day weekend with a dance on Saturday night. The Senators discussed at great length the fairness of this motion, since it would reduce the length of the R.O.T.C. weekend.

Senator Jack Vaughn (PiKA), felt that this action would be a slighting of the corps, and despite the fact that it contains a minority of students, certain forthcoming Air Force actions will probably make the corps more effective and enlarge its membership. He cited two points: one, that the corps was definitely receiving an airplane for flight training next year and two, that a bill to grant primary flight training to each college unit was sure to be approved by the government. Thus, while interest in the R.O.T.C. was dwindling, it would revive next year for certain.

Embassy Plan Will Begin Thursday Night

Integrating the religious side of the Lenten season with every day college life is the intention of the Sixth Annual Religious Embassy to be held on the campus tomorrow evening. Twelve prominent religious leaders will speak at informal discussions to be held at the fraternity houses and the freshmen lounge on the subject of "Faith in Our Time."

Participation by the students is one of the key virtues of the Embassy which has been continued since it was first started at the College in 1951.

"The Embassy comes this year during the Lenten season," says Richard Stanson, '56, Chairman of the Embassy, "and this is a time when we all must look to our obligation to our Maker and to ourselves, and to adjust our standards in our religious lives."

The Embassy begins at 7 p.m. in the various houses and the New Dorm Lounge. After the leader makes a few opening remarks, the students are expected to ask questions and make comments relative to the discussion.

Representing the Freshmen at the Embassy will be the Rev. Kenneth D. Thomas, '52, curate at Trinity Church here in Hartford. Rev. Thomas will be in the New Dorm lounge and will answer any question that is posed to him.

Freshman President Bill Johnson urges all the members of his class to attend the session in the lounge. He anticipates a fine discussion by the (Continued on page 6)

Baker Develops New Child Spelling Aid

Dr. Davis Predicts Eisenhower Victory

By MIKE ZOOB

"President Eisenhower's tremendous personal popularity and a program of moderation will enable him to be renominated and to win the coming election, probably resulting in a Republican House and Senate next November," disclosed Dr. Eugene Davis in a recent Tripod interview. Dr. Davis, a close follower of Republican activities said that the health issue will not be as important as it might have been to the American public since there is a tendency for people to get used to ailments. He went on to say that if the heart attack had been in August of '56 it would have played a more vital role in the minds of the voters.

Ike Doesn't Grasp

A double duty, that of allegiance to his country and of completing an unfinished task probably induced the President to seek renomination, Dr. Davis continued. He said, "Ike doesn't appear to be a grasper of personal power, and he also wants to remake the GOP." He felt that he would carry less of the South than he did before, depending on the Democratic candidate, but that the states of Texas and Florida were more loosely tied to the "Solid South" than in the past. Dr. Davis also said that the claims of too many vacations for the President were entirely unjust, as the White House staff and all of his affairs always move with the President. If some of the functions of a meeter and greeter were dispensed with, Dr. Davis felt, the problems involving judgment and personal attention could be more readily dealt with.

Spellavision to Be Marketed in August

By ROBERT STEVENSON, JR.

Children between the ages of six and twelve are going to be especially interested in a recent invention by a Trinity junior. Approximately one and a half months ago, H. Brooks Baker, '57, completed a series of tests on a new game called Spellavision.

"Based on Scrabble" This promising new advance in visual education is based on the Scrabble game which was quite popular a year ago, and is designed to help youngsters learn to spell correctly. Spellavision, which will be sold in kit form, consists of a picture printed on a board, a box of lettered metal squares, or tiles, and four "magic wands." Five sentences, having to do with the scene, are printed on the board. Beneath these sentences are grooves, into which the metal tiles fit. The object of the game is to match the descriptive title under the picture with words made up from tiles which are fitted into the grooves.

Variety Emphasized

This process is enhanced by the magic wands, which are magnetized so as to pick at random the tiles, laying face down in a little box. The child who first completes this matching game wins. Four children can play at once, and the game need not be played in its entirety at one time. A variety of boards will be available, each having a different scene.

Mr. Baker first conceived of Spellavision after returning from Europe last summer, and finding America engrossed in Scrabble. He realized that with a few minor, but significant alterations, the principle of Scrabble could be applied to a children's game.

Aid to Education

An important aspect to Spellavision is its value as an aid to visual education, which is becoming increasingly important in the teaching of handicapped children. The possibilities of introducing Mr. Baker's invention into the field of elementary foreign language instruction are also plausible, and are being considered.

Unlike many young inventors, Brooks Baker has done a very thorough job in promoting his new game. He has acquired the copyright, and applied for a patent. National Games Corporation has agreed to manufacture Spellavision and have it ready for the market in August. The kits will be priced at approximately $3.00; extra boards, each with a different scene, will sell for $1.00 each.

Mr. Baker has high hopes for the success of his product. Tests have proved that children in the six- to twelve-year-old age group are very responsive to the game.

Spring Vacation

Dean Clarke announced today that Spring Vacation will begin on Thursday, March 22 at 4:00 P.M., and will end at 5:00 P.M. Tuesday the third of April. He stated that double cuts will be in effect on Wednesday and Thursday March 21 and 22, as on both the fourth and fifth of April.

AFROTC to Receive Plane This Fall; New Flight Program to Be Initiated

Ryan Navion, four seat, 156 mile per hour aircraft recently allocated by the College A.F.R.O.T.C. as a part of the Air Force's student cadet flying training program. The tricycle landing gear equipped airplane will be delivered next fall.

The A.F.R.O.T.C. has been allocated a four seat, low wing, single engine Ryan Navion as a part of the Air Force program for giving flight instruction to R.O.T.C. students while they are still in college, it was announced today by Colonel Ayers. The sleek aircraft, with its tricycle landing gear and 156-mile per hour cruising speed will be delivered next fall, and will be used exclusively by the R.O.T.C., and will have no affiliation with the college flying club.

The detachment has requested hangar space and maintenance facilities at Rensselaer Field, Pratt & Whitney's private airport in East Hartford. Officials of the company are now considering the request. If this request is denied, the detachment will have to base the aircraft fourteen miles away at Bradley Field in Windsor Locks.

Before this time flying opportunities for the Air Force ROTC cadet were virtually non-existent prior to the cadet's summer training period between his junior and senior years.

Another significant step forward in the establishment of the AFROTC program as a flying organization is a bill currently before Congress which will provide, if passed, a primary pilot training program at all AFROTC units in civilian contract schools under the supervision of the Civil Aeronautics Administration. This program, would provide each student, upon successful completion of the program, with a private pilot's license. The flight training program would also be reduced by six months, after call to active duty.

Colonel Ayers expects the new program to greatly increase the enrollment in the R.O.T.C. program next fall and that it will eventually bring the cadet body close to its peak membership held during the Korean War.

GAW Is Still Meat For Debating Teams

During the past week and a half, the freshman debating teams have won five consecutive contests. They defeated Smith College three times, then Albertus Magnus, and finally New Haven State Teachers College.

The subject of these debates was the Guaranteed Annual Wage, which was defended by Talby Spivak and Joe Krawsky; and opposed by Herb Moorin, Paul Mills, and Ray Loven.

Last weekend Ted Brown and Dave Rholfing traveled to New York to participate in three debates. They defeated the representatives of Barnard College and New York University, and tied the debaters from Columbia University.

In the near future Columbia plans to send a team to Trinity, and challenge our debaters to another round.

Glee Club to Perform With Radcliffe Choir

On Sunday, March 18 the College Glee Club will join members of the Radcliffe Choral Society in a Passion Sunday concert at All Saints' Church in Worcester.

The concert, sponsored by the Worcester chapter of the American Guild of Organists, will include the seven Brahms "Marianlieder" and the movements of the Haydn "Lord Nelson" Mass sung by both clubs. Trinity, directed by Dr. Clarence H. Barber, will present a group of motets and Radcliffe will sing the Pergolesi "Stabat Mater."

IFC BALL VS. ROTC BALL

There has been a great deal of discussion, lately, concerning the possibilities of establishing an IFC Weekend in place of the ROTC Ball. Originating from the IFC, the idea seems to have sprung from a general trend of opinion that such an event would greatly enhance interfraternity relationships and spirit.

We are very much in accord with this proposal, not only because an IFC Weekend would give interfraternity relationships a definite and much-needed boost, but also because the fraternities on this campus play a more integral part in the life of the students than does the ROTC. Moreover, the combined resources of all the fraternities, both in terms of finances and participation, is quite capable of producing a bigger and more attractive college weekend.

One facet of the proposal seems to have a great deal of appeal to most students, namely, an all-college jazz concert on Sunday afternoon. Whether or not the event would be held in the Field House or outdoors is not important at this time. What is important, however, is that the students become aware of the advantages of such an event. This would be the only social function of the year which the entire student body could attend. The finances could be handled easily through the IFC, with each house contributing to the cost. We feel that there should be more of this sort of thing around here, especially in view of the rather anemic spirit so prevalent among Trinity students.

Of course there are many arguments against the IFC proposal; however, we feel that the advantages of such a weekend by far outweigh the laments of our campus military organization. In the past few years, neither the IFC Ball nor the ROTC Ball has met with a great deal of success. When one considers how important fraternities are on this campus, the choice between the two dances is obvious. We are in favor of a Greek Weekend, and look forward with much enthusiasm to the time when it becomes a reality.

FELLOWSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Last week in these columns we carried a letter suggesting that either the Senate or Tri-pod publish a booklet listing "... all necessary information concerning the various post-graduate opportunities available to both arts and science majors at Trinity."

Since then we have spoken with various members of the faculty and administration as concerns the practicability of such a publication.

From our investigations we have discovered: (1.) That the job of listing, filing and updating such voluminous amounts of material would be practically impossible. Not even the U. S. government compiles an anthology showing all graduate study opportunities. (2.) That the Dean's office and other faculty members post all available leaflets concerning graduate opportunities. (3.) That faculty members usually pick out promising candidates for graduate study, and recommend that they apply for specific post-graduate work. (4.) That Dean Hughes is apparently quite an authority on most programs for post-graduate work, fellowships and junior years abroad, and his seemingly comprehensive knowledge of such programs is free upon request.

We, therefore, recommend that anyone interested in post-graduate study not ask to have a piece of bait dangled before their very eyes, or a voluminous catalogue of opportunities compiled, but that said interested candidates contact Dean Hughes or the head of the department of study in which they are interested.

Egan Quips Draw Laughs At Winter Sports Dinner

By KIP TERRY

Hamlin Dining Hall was treated to a preview of the "$64,000 Question" Monday night, as Jim Egan's comments shook the rafters at the Winter Sports Banquet.

Egan, who with his brother Bill smashed his way into the nationwide headlines by taking all the categories on the popular quiz show, was the principal speaker at the sports banquet and fired quip after quip at the throng of letter winners in his role of after-dinner speaker.

Done Most for Trinity

Egan started the festivities off with the statement, "Besides Dan Jesse, I have probably done the most for Trinity College football by virtue of my Roman Law course." This provoked a tremendous round of applause. The heavy-set wit then moved on to a discussion of the "$64,000 Question," which he labeled "only a gimmick and not a test of true intellectual prowess."

"The $64,000 Question," the part-time Trinity professor continued, "is a flash-in-the-pan—a band of odd miscellaneous information. The only way you can use it is on the show." Citing an example, Egan asked, "Who wrote 'Tiptoe Through the Tulips'? I don't know. But I'll know tomorrow night."

The Hartford lawyer—"a profession which is about as popular in the community as an undertaker"—went on to describe the different aspects of his quiz-show experiences. "They have a Cadillac," he said, "which is of no use to me. I wish they'd give me a Yellow Cab driver instead. And that

KENTUCKY . . . For the past several months mysterious bombings have rocked the Kentucky campus. As if this were not enough, marijuana fumes, and the rifling of the campus's Coca-Cola machines have added to the confusion. Undoubtedly the most serious problem to date is the bombings in the men's dormitories. To be more specific, the commodores have been blown to oblivion. Not only is this unsanitary but terribly inconvenient for the other students, who were forced to do all sorts of fierce and prehistoric things in the course of their natural existence. Rumor has it, says the Connecticut Campus, that the chief Kentucky groundsman is predicting a banner year for the bluegrass lawns surrounding the men's housing facilities.

TUFTS . . . It seems that the masculine graces of the versatile "Jumbos" have not gone completely unnoticed. In a recent article, the Tufts Weekly reported the views of three kitchen maids on the subject of "the boys". Bessie McGrory of the salad department considers her position the most enviable for, "I can become more friendly with the boys than the two girls working behind the counter." Ethel Hannigan, by far the most candid of the trio only wishes she were about eighty years younger so she could give the Jackson girls a run for their money. Just in case Trinity men feel out of it, I suggest a trip to the Cave any evening to see Hartford's answer to Tufts' dolls of the culinary world.

VASSAR . . . Tastefully funny but not stuffy, this is the editorial policy of the soon-to-be-revealed Vassar humor magazine. Editor Ambie Breukelman reports that the idea for the magazine sprung from a dormitory bull session and spread swiftly across the campus. Who knows, perhaps the Vassarites will in time rival such literary masterpieces as the Illinois Shaft.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . The recent tragedy at MIT has caused considerable thought on the subject of fraternity pledge periods in general. Penn's Dean George Peters has approved a plan to continue the customary pledge trips only if the administration considers them to be of worthwhile purpose. It is refreshing to find in the college world, a rational mind who refuses to condemn the fraternity system and its practices in the face of public opinion.

Dr. Costello Gives Brilliant Phi Beta Kappa Lecture

Split Between Arts And Sciences Noted

By N. R. WINSLOW

The Chemistry Auditorium was nearly full when Dr. Harry Todd Costello, Brownell Professor of Philosophy, delivered his Phi Beta Kappa address, a lecture filled with much wisdom and wit. Dr. Costello was at his best Thursday as he spoke on "The Liberal Arts," and his great success was acclaimed by the entire audience who rose to applaud at the lecture's completion.

Defines Art

After defining an art as "any subject presented systematically from first principles," Prof. Costello gave a sketch of education in the Middle Ages when a college was a group of men, not a group of buildings. The liberal arts, consisting of the Pythagorean quadrivium and the Roman trivium, made up a general education. Upon completion of the curriculum the student was granted the Master of Arts degree. In those times admission to study brought with it the Bachelor's degree. One might go on to specialize in law, theology, or medicine; but the Doctor of Philosophy was presented in the first two professions before it was extended to medicine in the fourteenth century.

Problems of Liberal Arts

Prof. Costello then brought his discussion to contemporary problems of liberal arts. Here his wit was especially useful in giving philosophic insight into present day abuses and criticisms of the liberal arts.

The big trouble in a liberal education today is that most campuses are split down the middle between students in the arts and those in the sciences. It seems that too many students just don't want to know too much.

Our traditional American way is one of freedom and individuality, but most of us only mean this to apply to the other fellow. The actual American way is to whiz somewhere in an auto (it really doesn't matter where) and then whiz right back again. The goal of all this whizzing around and about would seem to be Florida!

The Danger to America

A serious danger to America, Dr. Costello pointed out, is that Americans don't care for a systematic and well thought-out philosophy. It is thus that the systematic but not cogently thought-out Communist philosophy can command us.

In Prof. Costello's estimation, the need today in education is to "examine the best things that have been written and thought." The ideal college and the truest liberal arts, he concluded, will result from the aid and inspiration of the thoughts and writings of the past.

Wesleyan Prof. Speaks At Psychology Meeting

The age at which a boy learns to tie his shoes and button his own pants may give an important clue concerning his later success in the economic world. So spoke Prof. David McClelland, chairman of Wesleyan's psychology department at last week's meeting of the Trinity Psychology Club.

For several years Prof. McClelland has been studying one of man's basic motives—the need for achievement (n-ach). In this work, Trinity has provided an important link in the chain because Prof. McClelland and staff have pirated many Trinity men to be subjects in the Wesleyan experiments. Credit for Trinity's help is generously acknowledged in both of Dr. McClelland's books.

Prof. McClelland and staff have recently conducted historical research correlating the n-ach as expressed by writers and poets with the economic rise and decline of nations. He finds writer's expression of n-ach very high in times of economic rise and very low in times of its decline. Thus, the next step would be to point out that economic success of nations is partly determined by parent-child relationships. It is this phase that Prof. McClelland is currently looking into.

Sticka Negotiates with 2 Clubs As Many Awards Accumulate

Charlie Sticka appeared to have bowed out of the limelight a few weeks after the Wesleyan game, but actually the "Big Stick" has been as busy as ever. He's had his fill of turkey dinners in the twenty or more banquets and public appearances he has made since that memorable November 10.

Illustrated in Sport

Numerous write-ups about Charlie have appeared nationally. Sport magazine, Life, and Sporting News Weekly have honored the gridiron star from "tiny Trinity," as well as the local papers and the A. P. Charlie also played in the East-West game, and made the All-Connecticut, All-New England, Little All-American and a few All-American teams. In addition, he was the recipient of the Bulger Lowe Award for the most outstanding (football) player in New England.

Bright Future

Sticka's future looks bright. A nice big present from Uncle Sam is his 4-F draft classification. The Los Angeles

Rams have issued Charlie a draft, which suits him great because West Coast ball to him is "good; the weather out there is fine; damn good!" The "Stick" is also under negotiation by a Montreal club. However, Charlie is going to let things settle until after baseball season, when he'll make up his mind, because he is also hoping for a baseball award.

Tough Competition To Test Tennismen

A tough schedule confronts Roy Dath's varsity tennis squad, as the Bantams get set for the opening matches with the University of Rhode Island on April 14.

The netmen will be faced with the problem of adequately filling the shoes of Messrs. Phil Craig and Bill Booth, last year's number one and two singles players, who were lost through the merciless land of graduation.

However, Dath will have quite a few returning from the 1955 squad—which compiled a 10-1 record—including lettermen Brooks Harlow, Capt. Charlie Stehle, Hugh Zimmerman, Bill Tewksbury, Dave Beers, and Dave Hamilton.

Struggles of Golf Team Told As Squad Eyes Season Opener

By DAVE SKAGGS

Almost unknown to most students on the campus, the college has one of the finest golf teams in New England. During the past five years the Blue and Gold foursomes have twice won fifth place in the New England tourney, competing against 25 colleges, and have taken 34 matches to 12 defeats and one tie in regular season play.

It wasn't until 1953 that the team, after two years as an informal group, was given official recognition as a varsity sport. In 1951, under the coaching of Mitch Pappas of the Fine Arts department, the team broke even with a 4-4 win-loss record. The following year, the same foursome won 7 and lost only to Amherst. That year as an informal sport the team supported itself and went to the New England's where they copped fifth.

Pappas continued as the coach of the group when they were granted varsity recognition three years ago. In recognizing golf as a minor sport, the athletic department was obliged to award team members letters, sweaters, traveling expenses, and one ball per man per match.

No provision was made for a place for the team to practice, but certain members of the group were able to secure permission for an occasional practice at the Wampanoag Country Club of West Hartford. Practices have been hard to work into the team's schedule because the club doesn't want college golfers on the links when great numbers of club members want to play. This conflicts with the schedules of the Trin players.

This winter the school did provide a small room in the basement of Alumni Hall for the golfmen to sharpen up their strokes. When the group asked for $100 to build a special apparatus which would give them a well equipped room, the Athletic department turned them down. Coach Pappas then went to his friends in the city and was able to get enough pieces of scrap rugs to make a makeshift golf net.

Last year the team was built around a completely new nucleus and had its first losing season.

Prospects for this year are very encouraging says Pappas. Captaining this year's team will be Sam Ninness, '57, and he will be joined by Jim Steinmetz, '56, and Al Payne, '57, of the 1955 squad. One of the most promising sophomores is John Crandall who, Pappas says, is a fine low handicap player. Another prospect is Jack Barton, '56, who has not gone out for the squad up to now.

Winter Sports Teams Honored

A total of thirty-one varsity letters were presented to members of the winter sports teams Monday night at the annual awards banquet held in Hamlin Dining Hall.

The Banquet was highlighted by presentations of various awards and election of captains, in addition to the after-dinner speaking of Jim Egan. The varsity winter teams wound up with a record of 19 wins and 17 losses, while the freshman outfits finished with a total of 15 and 15.

Holmstrom Gets Award

The most valuable swimming award was presented to Bob Holmstrom, with Key Logan and Walt Shannon being elected co-captains of next year's squad. Sophomore Jack McGowan received the most valuable basketball award, as Nick Vincent was named next year's captain. McGowan also copped the Coaches' Foul-Shooting Award with a 75.5 percentage.

Bernie Moran was selected as the most improved squash player and was also elected captain. Bob Baker was the winner of the Trinity Individual Squash Racquets Tournament. "Gold charm" awards for those having earned varsity letters for three years went to Don Scott, Hugh Zimmerman, John Morley, Ron Boss, Bob Holmstrom, and Hugh Crilly in swimming, and Jack Barton in basketball. Boss was also given a gold medal for

Trackmen to Open Year at Wesleyan

When the starting gun is fired down in the Wesleyan Gym on March 21st, the Trinity track season will be officially under way. The Ban-tams, who had a very successful 5-2 season last year and finished seventh in the Eastern Collegiates at Boston, are perhaps even stronger this spring.

Returning lettermen are numerous, and include discus-thrower John Swett, who set a record last year with a toss of 139' 6". Lanky Bob Godfrey will again be featured in the hurdles, and Ed Hoyer will leap in the broad jump. In running events, the 440 and half mile run will be done by Ron Labella with George McCanless and Hugh Crilly running the mile.

Varsity letter winners:

Swimming: R. G. Boss, H. W. Crilly, W. H. Eastburn, R. W. Holmstrom, A. F. Illick, K. M. Logan, D. McDonald, J. R. Morley, L. W. Muench, J. F. O'Reilly, W. H. Ray, D. J. Scott, W. C. Shannon, J. P. Spatt, D. S. Taylor, H. Zimmerman, and D. L. Hockett, manager.

Squash: R. H. Baker, A. B. Harlow, R. W. Jewett, D. J. Kenefick, D. J. McAllister, and B. A. Moran.

Basketball: J. M. Barton, R. H. Godfrey, J. H. McGowan, S. F. Ninness, R. J. Salamon, J. C. Swett, N. J. Vincent, and J. T. Snow, manager.

Coach Karl Kurth is lucky to have three former freshmen record holders on his squad this spring. Dick Noble set a javelin record with a toss of 167' 6". Fred Boynton, one of the best high-jumping prospects to come to Trin in recent years, last year set a mark of 6' 1/4". On the cinders Hub Segur has a record of 4:38.4 and seems extremely fast in the mile. Sophs Bob Kulas, Flex Illick, Dick Polley and Ray Shepherd should also see a lot of action this season.

proposed action was meant as no slight to the corps, but simply, that the I.F.C. represented a larger portion of the student body; therefore the dance and weekend it sponsored should have a greater importance than it now has. He made it clear that the dance would be open to all college students with the exception of the freshmen—a rule that now is in effect. President Shaw went on to say that this proposed action had been approved unanimously by all the fraternities on campus.
The Senate's final decision on this action was tabled until the next meeting in order to give a member of the Cadre a chance to speak to the Senate and give the fraternities the chance to discuss at further length this proposed action.

Eisenhower . . .

A Strong Candidate
Dr. Davis said, "He will lose a few votes in the farm belt even though he and Mr. Benson are right," but the number of electoral votes in retrospect would be very small. He continued by remarking that his dealings with the Near East situation are about as good as we can do since nobody has come up with better suggestions. The fact that there are very few policy issues and that the Wall Street wolves have not taken over the country, provides the Democratic Party with very little cannon fodder.

Little Friction Exists
Dr. Davis said he thought little friction exists among the cabinet members and that few changes are in order should Ike win. He also said "President Eisenhower had not given Vice-President Nixon the kiss of death in asking him to chart his own course." The Vice-President should not be chosen, Davis went on, because of geographical location. As it now is, Mr. Nixon is held in high esteem by the President.

miserable booth! They squeeze my brother and myself in there with a shoehorn, with the help of Lynn Dollar or someone."
Egan also stated that the stage hands watch the show from behind stage, and when the contestants go into the sound-proof booth, they pretend to roll the consolation prize Cadillac onto the stage. "It's like the sword of Damocles hanging over your head," he quipped.
The 1937 Trin graduate then proceeded to lightly tell the pre-show experiences of the fabulous duo, going over such material as "Have you heard from anyone this week?" ("Yeah, from a fur-trapper in Alaska!")
Talking about Madison Avenue in New York, "where all that junk originates," Egan stated that workmen are constantly interrupting the interviews and that the offices are in a constant state of flux. "It's like an Olson and Johnson show," he exclaimed. "Like Cuckoo-Land personified."
According to the speaker, his most terrifying moment came when the brothers declared, "Give us anything!" "I was scared I would miss that first question," he admitted. "But the show to us now," he continued, "is more or less routine. And tomorrow night it will be over," he said, taking a deep breath. "One way or the other."
However, all wasn't on the humorous side. He expressed a sincere feeling of a long and happy association with Trinity. "I knew Presidents Ogilby, Funston, and now President Jacobs well," he stated, "and had fine professors from Harry Todd Costello on down the line."
Egan then threw a parting statement at the delighted audience by stating that he had told his little daughter he was going to speak at Trinity, to which she quipped, "Daddy, I'm sorry for them!"
